Picture of what a rooster looks like naturally, no dubbing or spur cutting.

This picture you see the rooster is dubbed and the spurs has been cut, making them nubbed. This is done to this length for the intent to fight the rooster with a gaff or knife. It is placed on the spur of the leg of the rooster.

Dubbed rooster, meaning the comb and wattles have been removed. This makes the rooster look like it was scalped. Dubbing this close to the rooster's skull is only seen in Roosters where the intent is fight them.
