Referral Title: Joint Model Crisis Response Pilot Program with the City of Salinas

Referral Purpose: This referral requests that the County of Monterey collaborate with the City of Salinas on a potential pilot crisis response program

Brief Referral Description: In June 2022, Salinas City Council explored setting aside funding and began to engage in meetings with the County of Monterey Behavioral Health Department about potentially launching a joint crisis response pilot program modeled after CAHOOTS Crisis Assistance in Eugene, Oregon or the STAR Program in Denver. This referral requests that County Behavioral Health and Health Department staff further explore launching such a program in collaboration with the City of Salinas. The County Mental Health Services Act (MHSA) funding would be a logical source for such a potential pilot project.

CAHOOTS (Crisis Assistance Helping Out on the Streets) began 34 years ago in Eugene, Oregon to provide an innovative community-based public safety system for crises involving mental illness, homelessness and addiction as part of a community-policing initiative. The CAHOOTS teams deal with a wide range of mental health-related crises, including conflict resolution, welfare checks, substance abuse, suicide threats, and more, relying on trauma-informed de-escalation and harm reduction techniques. The non-law enforcement staff handle non-emergency medical issues, avoiding costly ambulance transport and emergency room treatment. CAHOOTS call come to Eugene’s 911 system or the police non-emergency number. Dispatchers are trained to recognize non-violence situations with a behavioral health component and route those calls to CAHOOTS. A team will respond, assess the situation and provide immediate stabilization in case of urgent medical needs or psychological crisis, assesment, information, referral, advocacy, and, when warranted, transporation to the next step in treatment. The cost savings are considerable. The program budget is $2.1 million annually, while the combined budget of Eugene and Springfield police departments are $90 million. In 2017, the CAHOOTS teamed answered 17% of the Eugene Police Department’s overall call volume. The program saves the city an estimated $8.5 million in public safety spending annually.

STAR (Support Team Assisted Response) was launched in June 2020 in Denver. It provides person-centric mobile crisis response to community members who are experiencing problems related to mental health, depression, poverty, homelessness and/or substance abuse issues. Similar to CAHOOTS, 911 calls for these types of issues are routed to STAR, which sends a licenses behavioral health professional and a paramedic to a person in distress. When the unit arrives, the individual in crisis can be assured that the interaction is ground in a harm reduction, trauma-informed philosophy. The team, dressed in street clothes, provides direct clinical de-escalation and community service connection, as well as on-demand resources such as water, food, clothing and basic living supports.

Salinas Police Chief Roberto Felice has expressed his support for such a pilot program in Salinas. This potential calloboration was also raised recently during the City of Salinas-County Ad Hoc Committee.
