Subject: Response to Public Comments on Well Abandonment Deficiencies – File Number
PLN210174

Dear Ms. Jensen,

We appreciate the opportunity to respond to public comments regarding the 20 wells identified by CalGEM as “Not to Standard” abandonments within the Myhre Arvid J Tr et. al. Aera Solar Project.

Explanation of Well Abandonment Deficiencies

The noted deficiencies primarily involve abandonment elements that do not comply with current standards but still maintain the integrity required to protect water resources.

Specifically:

1. Hydrocarbon Zone Protection (§1723.1):

- In cases where hydrocarbon zone plugs do not meet current standards, the steel casing and cement from the original drilling operations act as barriers, preventing hydrocarbon migration. Additionally, many wells without cement across known hydrocarbon markers either have abandonment mud across these zones or were never perforated in the wellbore, meaning the casing and primary cementing effectively prevent fluid movement.

2. Freshwater Protection (§1723.2):

- Although some wells lack cement plugs inside the casing, all contain weighted, viscous abandonment mud, which effectively prevents fluid migration and protects freshwater zones. In cases where the freshwater zone plugs do not meet current standards, the steel casing and cement from the original drilling operations act as barriers, preventing fluid migration into or out of the freshwater zone.

3. Inadequate Hole Fluid (§1723(b)):

- While records of the exact weight and viscosity of the abandonment mud are unavailable for some wells, CalGEM’s Final Report of Abandonment confirms that these wells met Division requirements at the time of abandonment. (See Attachment A).

Protection of Water Resources

Water resources remain protected through:

- Abandonment Mud:
Cement and abandonment mud approved by CalGEM create a reliable barrier against fluid movement.
- Original Well Construction:
The primary cementing of each well—where cement fills the annular space between the steel casing and the formation—ensures no pathways exist for contaminants to reach freshwater zones.

Assessment of Risk Level

The overall risk level for these wells is low due to:

- Reservoir Pressure Reduction:
Decades of production in the San Ardo field have significantly depleted reservoir pressures, eliminating the energy needed to drive hydrocarbons upward into shallower zones.
- Absence of Fluid Migration Potential:
Geological and operational analyses indicate that fluid migration into protected zones is highly unlikely. There is no fluid injection within 1000 feet of the project area therefore reservoir pressure will remain depleted throughout the duration of project timeframe.

Technical Analysis

Our review of the wells listed in CalGEM's November 8, 2024 comments identified several outside the project boundary and unaffected by current development activities:

- Outside Project Boundary Wells:
 - Ferrini 5200-11 (API: 0405321340)
 - Ferrini 65-11 (API: 0405300134)
 - Ferrini 573-11 (API: 0405300141)
 - Ferrini 66-11 (API: 0405320071)

Further analysis revealed that three additional wells have cement across all zones of interest per CalGEM regulations:

- Ferrini 5061-11 (API: 0405321459)
- Ferrini 5080-11 (API: 0405321347)
- Ferrini 5159-11 (API: 0405320877)

This reduces the count of "Not to Standard" abandonments within the project area to thirteen. Based on these findings, we affirm that these thirteen wells pose no threat to health, safety, or the environment in their current condition.

We trust this response addresses the public concerns and underscores our commitment to protecting water resources and minimizing environmental risks. Please contact us if additional information or clarification is needed.

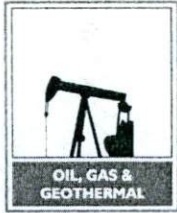

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Andrew Cochrane', with a stylized, cursive script.
